

FALL REFUSES TO ANSWER QUESTIONS

WOODROW WILSON STILL FIGHTING FOR LIFE BUT GROWING WEAKER

REALIZES THAT FIGHT IS OVER; LOSING GROUND

Physicians Say End Is Only a Matter of Time Now.

Washington, Feb. 2.—Woodrow Wilson was clinging to life this afternoon by the slenderest of threads.

His physicians are making his last hours as comfortable and as painless as possible by frequent injections of opiates. Early this afternoon they admitted that their slightest hope of a turn for the better in the former president's condition has faded. He is growing steadily weaker; the tremendous vitality that enabled him to stand off death for four years is getting lower and lower.

"It's only a question of hours" they said in reply to all questions.

Shortly before noon an official bulletin stated that Mr. Wilson had no pain and that the whole efforts of the physicians now are directed toward making him comfortable.

"Does that mean you are making his death as easy as possible?" was the blunt question asked of Dr. Cary T. Grayson, his chief physician.

He hesitated.

"Yes," he said simply.

Dr. Grayson said:

"Mr. Wilson realizes the fight is over, but he is making a game last stand. It breaks me all up to see the struggle he is making."

"It is impossible to say how long he may last, but he is gradually ebbing away. The end may come at any moment."

There were tears in his eyes as he spoke and his voice was choked with emotion.

Shortly after eight o'clock this morning the president was conscious and very, very weak. Mrs. Wilson came into the room and he signed to her to come close. She leaned over the bedside and he whispered to her for a few moments. The nurse and the doctor moved quietly away. Then she went choking from the room, and the patient dropped back exhausted from the effort.

Despite the assurances from the doctors that death is not far off, Mrs. Wilson, it is said, steadfastly refuses to believe that Mr. Wilson's present illness is necessarily fatal, and she clings to the conviction that there will yet be a turning point that the doctors have given up hoping for.

With a courage and a spirit so indomitable that it challenged the admiration of the sorrowful little group about his bedside, the former president survived the long night. And when the dawn of another day flushed up over the quiet red brick house in S street, he was still fighting off the end, stubbornly, gamely, but always weaker.

Every bulletin from the haggard and sleepless physicians, every word that came from the relatives who watched helplessly in the sick room emphasized that the magnificent fight which Mr. Wilson is putting up is a fruitless one.

"It is only a question of time," they agreed. "It may be only a few hours. It may be 24 or 48."

It was definitely determined today that the former president suffered another stroke early Friday morning, and that this was the "crash" which his doctors mentioned. Coming on top of the digestive disturbance he experienced Wednesday, this proved the all but fatal blow. It was a similar stroke in the White House four years ago that almost cost his life, and left him the semi-invalid he has been since he retired to private life. His system will not stand another. The doctors marvelled at his frail constitution having survived the one.

A block and a half from the Wilson home is a dilapidated construction shanty, thrown together with odds and ends of building material left over from the construction work going on in a vacant lot. The architect's mass of blue prints lie neglected and haphazardly thrown into a corner. On a makeshift pine table in the center of the small room is a mass of telegraph wires and instruments, hastily constructed to provide means of carrying to the waiting nation the word that signals the passing of one of its greatest citizens.

There are no chairs, the telegraphers standing cramped about the table as they work their keys. There is no room for the reporters, only for the telegraphers. The reporters come, thrust their copy into the door and dash back again.

In the corner a small wood stove is stoked by a solitary and imperturbable watchman. It's all new business to him. He stokes the fire methodically and puffs his pipe, the acrid smoke mingling with the choking puffs of the badly connected stove. The air is heavy.

The shack is reached by crossing a vacant lot over a crazy-quilt pattern of pine planks, laid in the deep mud.

It is from such a place as this that the nation will learn, probably before night, of the passing of life, who changed the history of the world at a time when civilization was rocked by the greatest war of all time.

"Bravest Man I Ever Met" Says Nurse of Wilson

Washington, Feb. 2.—An intimate picture of the scene in the room where Woodrow Wilson lies dying, was given to International News Service today by the nurse who has been constantly at his bedside since early Friday morning.

"Mr. Wilson is the bravest man I have ever met," she declared. "Never once has he complained of the terrible pain that he suffers. It is only by the expression of his face and by little means and groans that escape his lips involuntarily that we know he is suffering. Then he is given a hypodermic of morphine."

Mr. Wilson, according to the nurse, has been under influence of morphine, almost constantly since the "crash" came in the early hours Friday morning. Like Dr. Grayson, the nurse was reluctant to describe the serious turn in the ex-president's condition as a paralytic stroke.

"He seemed to be improving," she declared, "when suddenly he was seized with a violent pain about two o'clock Friday morning and from that time on his condition has grown steadily worse. At times his mind seems to clear and when it does he calls for Mrs. Wilson. They talk for a while and then his speech becomes incoherent."

CHALLENGES RIGHT OF SENATE COMMITTEE TO QUERY HIM ON LEASES

Former Secretary of the Interior Tells Questioners He Will Stand On Constitutional Rights—Is Ordered Back Tuesday.

Washington, Feb. 2.—Declaring that he would stand on his constitutional rights not to take any steps that might incriminate him, former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall, appeared before the Senate public lands committee today but flatly refused to answer any questions bearing on the leasing of oil lands to E. L. Doherty or Harry F. Sinclair.

Fall challenged the right of the Senate committee to examine him concerning the $160,000 and $25,000 loans which he received from Doherty and Sinclair on the ground that the investigation had now been taken out of the hands of the Senate by the passage of the Walsh resolution authorizing President Coolidge to proceed in the courts to cancel the leases.

The appearance of the former Secretary of the Interior before the committee today was accomplished only after a special board of physicians reported he was physically able to make the trip to the capitol and withstand the committee's cross examination. Immediately after listening to Fall's refusal to testify the committee ordered all persons out of the hearing room and went into a executive session to determine what course to pursue.

After a long consultation behind closed doors, the committee announced that the Senate would be asked on Monday to go through the formality of authorizing it to continue the investigation so as to meet Fall's objection, another subpoena was issued ordering Fall to come back on Tuesday to testify.

Three reasons were given by Fall for refusing to answer questions.

1.—Because the resolutions under which the committee is conducting its investigation were alleged to have expired at the end of the 67th Congress so that the present committee has no authority to go ahead with the inquiry.

2.—Because the committee has "no authority" since it has been discharged through the adoption of the Walsh resolution, and

3.—Because, said Fall, "my answers may tend to incriminate me."

While Fall's scheduled appearance was the outstanding feature of the Teapot Dome developments, Democratic ranks in and out of Congress were virtually thrown into panic today as a result of the startling revelations of Doherty to the committee that he had at various times employed four members of the Wilson cabinet—Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, Secretary of the Interior Lane, Attorney General Gregory and Secretary of War Garrison.

McAdoo, Democratic candidate for the presidential nomination, is still in Doherty's employ and has been paid $250,000 for services in the last four years, the oil man said.

Gregory's connection with Doherty has eliminated him as one of the special committee to prosecute the government's oil case. It was strongly indicated at the White House, after a conference with the former attorney general, due in Washington this afternoon, President Coolidge was expected to announce withdrawal of his appointment. Much interest centered in the possible selection of a substitute for Gregory as special counsel.

J. Crawford Biggs, Raleigh, N. C., was prominently mentioned. He has been named assistant to Strawn and Gregory. In 1920 he handled the government's successful suit in recovering the Elk Hills naval reserve from the Southern Pacific railway. Justice Brandeis of the supreme court, Senator Walsh, Democrat of Montana, who was chiefly responsible for uncovering the oil lease scandal, were also said to be under consideration.

Seeking to get the navy's story of the leases, the house naval affairs committee renewed its examination of high ranking naval officers, Rear Admiral John K. Robinson, said to be the originator of the navy's policy to exchange royalty oil for harbor improvements and storage tanks, was the chief witness.

Washington, Feb. 2.—Silas H. Strawn's connection with the Texas Oil Company will not bar him from serving as one of the government's prosecutors in the oil lease litigation so far as President Coolidge is concerned, it was declared at the White House today.

The Strawn nomination, however, will have to be confirmed by the Senate before the appointment becomes effective.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—Whether Silas Strawn's connection with oil dealings is sufficient to effect his selection as special counsel in the oil lease investigations meeting at Washington with steam visible over all the country, today rested with President Coolidge, who selected him.

Ralph Shaw, member of the firm of Winston, Payne, Strawn and E. Shaw, admitted that firm, of which Silas H. Strawn is a member, had represented the Texas Company and "hoped to do so in the future."

He denied emphatically that the firm had represented the Sinclair interests. Friends of Mr. Strawn who have been to Washington since his appointment by President Coolidge believed today that his connection through his firm with the Texas Company in the oil lease affect his services in the oil lease probe, though they had not heard directly from Strawn on the question.

"We have represented the Texas Company in the matter of local coalitions," Shaw stated today. "Our legal services have been limited to that department. We have not been counsel for the Texas Company in the sense that we have been regularly retained."

FRANCE UNCHANGED

Paris, Feb. 2.—British recognition of the Russian soviet government does not change the attitude of France which is the same as that of the U. S., the foreign office announced today.

QUARTER MILLION LOSS BY BLAZE

Bridgeport, Conn., Feb. 2.—Fire today destroyed the paint building of Ringling Brothers' circus plant here, causing a loss estimated at $250,000 and threatening the entire plant and adjoining structures. Scores of animals were removed from the animal building twenty feet away before the flames were checked.

SON OF RUSSIAN PEASANT WILL SUCCEED LENINE IT IS LEARNED

Moscow, Feb. 2.—Alexiev Ivanovitch Rykov, vice president of the Council of Peoples Commissaries, and vice chairman of the council of labor and defense, probably will be named successor to Nikolai Lenin as president of the Council of Peoples Commissaries, it was learned from an authoritative source today.

In 1922 when Lenin was incapacitated by illness, Rykov took over most of his duties, being assisted by Leo Kamenov and Vice Chairman Tsurupa.

Rykov, the son of a Russian peasant, is in his forty third year. He was born in the province of Varka and was graduated from the University of Kazan. He dresses like a workman and has consistently refused to have any military guard at the door of his office.

Government circles were highly gratified today over the official announcement that Great Britain has granted de jure recognition to the soviet government.

Officials said they believed it marks a new era in Russia's international relations.

WARNING SENT TO WILBERFORCE DAY BEFORE THE FIRE

A letter of friendly warning was received by officials of Wilberforce University the day before fire destroyed B. F. Lee Hall, boys' dormitory at the institution, it was made known Saturday.

The letter, although unsigned, was evidently from a student who was troubled and anonymously attempted to get officials on their guard. The writer of the letter has not been traced, but officials believe the letter was written in the spirit of friendliness.

An investigator from the state fire marshal's office, who probed the origin of the blaze Friday, returned to Columbus Friday night but said he would return Monday as soon as he checks up on information in his possession. Officials of the University long him every aid in the effort to ascertain the incendiary believed to have fired the structure.

After strenuous efforts the part of President J. A. Gregg and other school officials there were still 15 students, who had not yet been assigned to rooms Saturday. They are the remnants of the 127 deposed by the destruction of the dormitory, the others having been taken care of by crowding them in other rooms in the dormitory buildings. Officials hope to place these 15 in rooms before Saturday night due to the impending cold weather. They are now living in the university library. No further arrests have been made.

MATRON DECLARES TALK IS AMUSING

Columbus, Feb. 2.—Mrs. J. P. Elton, Chief Matron of the Girls' Industrial Home near Delaware, a view discussed with Governor A. V. Donahey the conduct of the school.

The matron said she was amused over the controversy among women's clubs over the question of paddling girls and boys at the Delaware and Lancaster institutions. This question is an issue, particularly with club women of Cincinnati, who have enlisted the aid of Judge W. C. Hoffman in a crusade against the edict of state authorities that girls are to be paddled when they are disobedient.

The order restoring corporal punishment—in theory—is re-establishing after a riot at the Girls' Industrial Home early in January.

"We have not paddled a girl," said Mrs. Elton. "It has not been necessary, and I think indignation meetings ready to co-operate in carrying out any policy that may be suggested for the moral, physical and spiritual welfare of her charges. Mrs. Elton said she did not care to discuss the political aspects of the agitation."

Mrs. Elton said she had no fears of further trouble at the institution and that those interested in its welfare would find the management to be ready to co-operate in carrying out any policy that may be suggested for the moral, physical and spiritual welfare of her charges. Mrs. Elton said she did not care to discuss the political aspects of the agitation."

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 2.—Edward Barnett, of Ironton, O., who was serving a sentence in Hamilton County Jail and fined $200 for alleged liquor law violations, today was released on order of U. S. Judge Smith Hickenlooper because of extenuating circumstances surrounding the alleged violations. The court ordered a fine of $200 against Barnett cut off.

THREE KILLED, SCORE INJURED IN GAS EXPLOSION IN KANSAS CITY

Kansas City, Feb. 2.—Three persons were known to have been killed and a score of others injured, many seriously today in a gas explosion which occurred in the basement of the Bailey-Reynolds Chambliss Company.

Several of the injured were hurt when they jumped from the upper stories of the building following the explosion.

COCA COLA KING FIGHTS SUIT.

Asa G. Candler & Mrs. Onezima De Bouchell

Asa G. Candler, multi-millionaire coca cola king of Atlanta, Ga., is contesting the $500,000 breach of promise suit brought by Mrs. Onezima De Bouchell, New Orleans society woman, now on trial in the Federal District Court in Atlanta. Mrs. De Bouchell alleges Candler broke off their engagement on the pretense that she had invited men to her room in an Atlanta hotel, and she sued to clear her name. Candler retorted that Mrs. De Bouchell, at the time they were engaged, was still the wife of Adolphe Rouquet, of New Orleans, whom she divorced later in Reno, Nev., and their engagement, therefore, was void.

CHARGES HUSBAND RESPONSIBLE FOR THE DEATH OF HER DAUGHTER

Salem, N. J., Feb. 2.—Accused by her husband of killing their seven-year-old daughter, Miriam, whose body was found Thursday near Woodston in a well, Mrs. Bessie Atkinson today charged him with responsibility for the child's death.

The father, Robert Atkinson, had accused the mother of starving the child to death because she thought her a "changeling," the child of another woman given to her by mistake in a hospital.

Prosecutor Daniel W. Beckley said the woman had not gone into details in the accusation against her husband. Atkinson, in a four-hour examination, early today, sullenly denied any responsibility.

While authorities believe the child died of starvation, the report of Dr. R. M. Davis, county medical examiner, who performed an autopsy, said death might have been due to freezing, starvation or poison.

Mrs. Mamie Downey, the little girl's aunt, told investigators she had been undernourished. Christ-mas Day, she said, her dinner consisted of gravy and bread.

Bridgeport, N. J., Feb. 2.—With its star witness believed to be dying, the prosecution today began pressing its case against Thompson Dickson, accused by his father of beating his 16-year-old daughter, Emma, to death and hiding her body in a swamp.

The father, known as "Uncle Benny," is under the care of a doctor constantly. His son is in jail here apparently unconcerned and resigned to the fate he says will "send an innocent man to the electric chair."

RECOGNITION OF RUSSIA APPLAUDED BY BRITISH PUBLIC

London, Feb. 2.—Preparations were under way by the British foreign office today for a conference with soviet Russia to draw up a treaty confirming Great Britain's de jure recognition of the Moscow regime.

Premier MacDonald, chief of the British labor government, is hopeful that the terms of the British note granting recognition to the soviet government will prove wholly acceptable to Moscow.

The first big executive step by the labor government was generally applauded on the ground that it opens the way for wider trade and will relieve British unemployment.

The Times and Morning Post, the latter official organ of the Tories, bitterly denounced recognition.

WHAT'S WHAT IN GERMANY

What is the precise condition of Germany today? We wish we could answer the question with authority. A great many persons, both natives and visitors, offer their testimony, but their reports do not always agree—in fact they rarely agree. If we believe the pessimists, most of whom are Germans, the country is hopelessly bankrupt, and millions of people are on the verge of starvation. If on the other hand we believe certain French observers, Germany is commercially prosperous; its bankruptcy is a technical contrivance to escape paying its debts and it is rapidly but stealthily arming to plunge Europe into war again.

The truth is doubtless somewhere between those two extremes. Certainly we get the impression that the government is at least making a real effort to maintain a stable currency. The old currency is absolutely worthless and has been swept out of the way. The new currency can be kept at par only by balancing the budget; that is, by reducing expenditures and finding new sources of taxation. The Marx cabinet is really trying to do that, and the conference in which American representatives are taking part is designed to help the work.

It appears that there is not much unemployment, but that the manufacturers are succeeding in their effort to divert the increasingly-important tax gatherer from their own surpluses to the resources of the general public. The work people are having to work harder for less money. The eight-hour day is threatened in the industries in which it has not already disappeared. Wages are lower than they were, but then so are prices. Production in Germany is exceedingly cheap because the old indebtedness of most commercial establishments was wiped out by the fall of the mark. Today the "fixed charges" on German industry are light indeed. There can be no doubt that the intellectual class and those who used to live on invested money are suffering severely, as they have suffered ever since the war. German business, however, is generally prosperous, and the work people get along better perhaps than the work people in England. Fiscally Germany is improving. In the end it may pull itself quite out of its financial troubles, but it can do it only by reaching a definitive agreement with France concerning reparations.

Fighting the French has wasted billions of money. Agreeing with them will mean paying billions in reparations, but it will have a steadying and stimulating influence that will further German prosperity. Quarreling with the French again would destroy the gains that German industry is beginning to make and would plunge the masses of the people into worse miseries than they have yet known.

Meanwhile alarmists from France report that the Germans are almost ready to set out on another war; that General Von Seeckt, who is in charge of national defense under the present government can order out four million men who have been clandestinely armed and drilled; and that he has succeeded in shifting the manufacture of ammunition and chemicals from the Rhine and the Ruhr to East Prussia and Saxony.

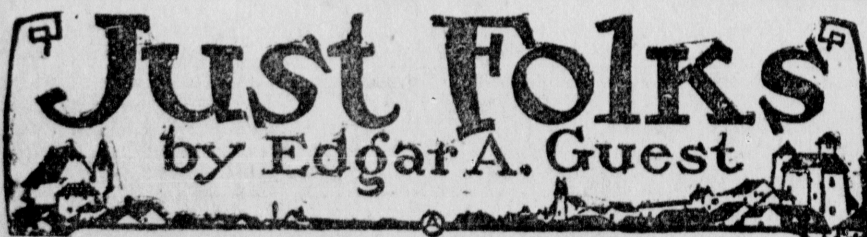

There may be some foundation for the stories. We are ready to believe that Germany is better organized in a military way than its own spokesmen will admit or than the Treaty of Versailles contemplated; but we would not give much for German chances in a war waged while France is in control of the Ruhr and the Rhine.

LAW WILL NOT ENFORCE ITSELF

It has been known for many years that the patriotic city of Philadelphia, which in many respects is more thoroughly American than any other its size in the entire country, has had political graft and rottenness that would startle the world if it were uncovered. For there have been times when men have sought to bring it to the surface. Good men have seen its ugly face, but have been unable to eliminate it. Now under the new administration a policy of law enforcement has been adopted which is attracting the attention of the country. But the spirit that is being required to undertake this work is one of iron. A policy of the strong army and the mailed fist has had to be adopted. Crime and vice in every form has been discovered as existing on the lower levels, where on the higher stratas are to be found the best people in the world. But in order to do this the new mayor was compelled to call to his assistance Brigadier-General Smedley D. Butler, who has gone after the situation as he would under military rule. He is determined to clean up old Philadelphia. All the country bids him Godspeed, because "the city of brotherly love" should be an example of good citizenship as well as one of historic patriotism.

THANK YOU, POSTMASTER GENERAL NEW

A newspaper is like an open letter from the great round world, and next to the personal communication of one who is near and dear to the receiver, it is for many persons the most popular and desirable reading matter that the post can bring. Therefore it is welcome news to the public that the Postmaster General has given orders to expedite the postal delivery of newspapers by giving them the same facilities of transmission that first-class matter enjoys. The effect is to separate newspapers from the parcel post and so avoid the delay due to putting parcels and newspapers in mixed mail sacks. In commercial circles the information conveyed by newspapers is of immediate consequence and hence the swift transmission and the quickest delivery are imperatively desirable.

THE PAN IN THE SINK

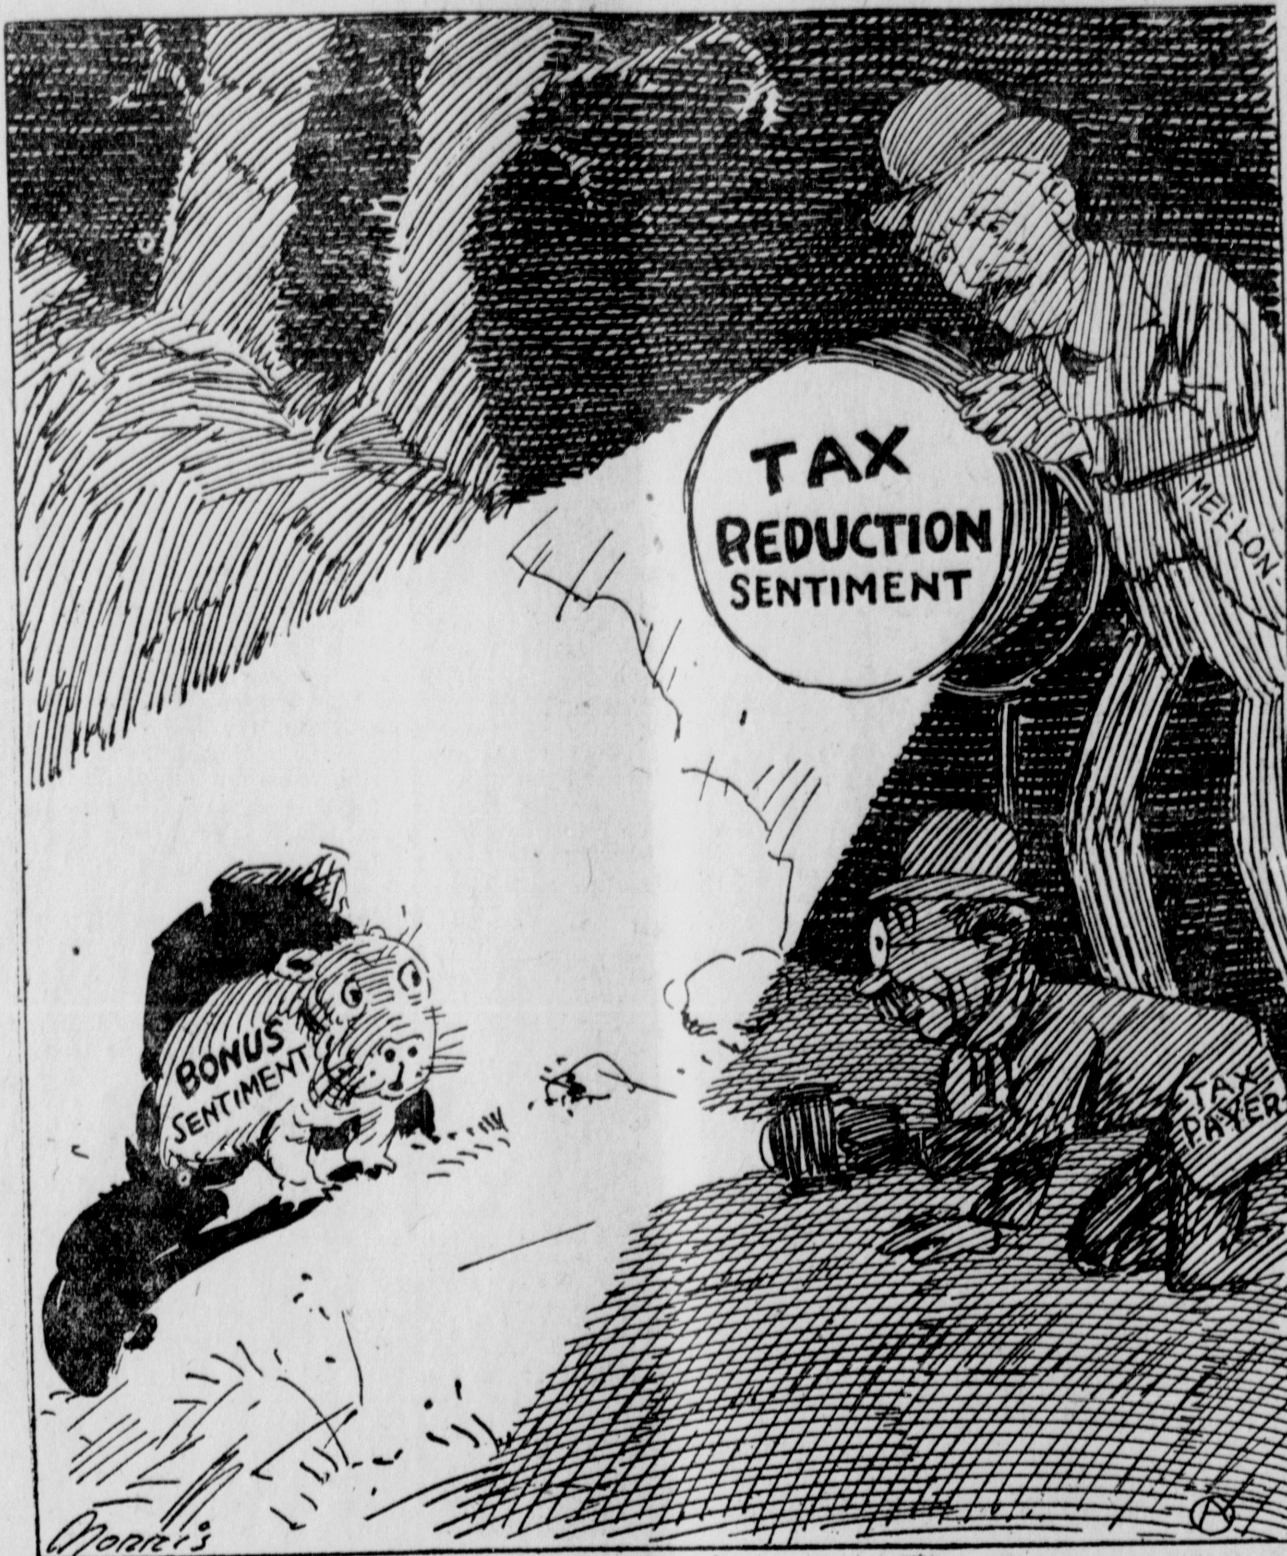

I'm the sort of a fellow that's fond of his home, I'd rather be there than to wander or roam; I'd rather sit down with my pipe and a book In that old easy chair in my library nook, With my children about me, the wife smiling near, The hum of the traffic too distant to hear, Than travel afar at the end of the day For the joy of a concert, a lecture or play.

I'm a home-loving chap, there's no doubt about that, The thing I like most is to hang up my hat On the hook in the hall, when the night time slips down, And say: "Well, I'm done with the bustle of town! I'm here where it's restful, I'm here where it's sweet!"

But even the joy of the home's not complete— Yes, even the home would be fairer, I think, Were it not for that pan which she keeps in the sink. I'm not proud, I'm not fussy, I'm willing to bear My portion of duty and labor and care, But I hate with the hate of a venomous man The feel of the drip of that kitchen pan! And I hate with the fury and malice of hate That drip with that pan to the old alley gate! I have courage enough, but from one task I shrink, 'Tis to empty the pan which she keeps in the sink.

Today I am going to talk secretly to the housewife! Her family may not listen! For I am going to talk about the problem of introducing new customs in the home, of making improvements which her family may not want made. It is a fact that the average family resists changes in the home—even though those changes spell progress. Uncle John gets used to hanging his umbrella on a peg in the hall and he resents the new china umbrella holder which the housekeeper has saved so long to buy. Aunt Mary becomes accustomed to tying up her table napkin with a bit of ribbon after every meal and she dislikes the new napkin rings introduced by the housekeeper.

Brother Will hates the new salt spoons (much preferring to take a pinch of salt in his fingers, as of yore!) and Sister Helen positively refuses to use the new upholstered rocker in the living room which has taken the place of the old sag-seated armchair.

But perhaps the greatest opposition of all is shown by the family when the housekeeper makes changes in the meals. What a clatter is heard when white bread disappears and the more nutritious wholewheat bread is introduced! What a howl of protest arises over the health-giving salad which replaces some favorite but too-heavy luncheon dish!

Sometimes the progressive housekeeper becomes discouraged over her family's lack of understanding. "What's the use of taking a Domestic Science course and learning to build a balanced menu," writes a Reader of the column, "if my family demand

Omen Forecasts Bloodshed.

The "blood of the Burgundians" has appeared again on the water of Lake Morat, near Neuchâtel, portending more trouble for old Europe, if ancient legend is to be believed. The reddening of the water of this lake is caused by the flowering of an aquatic plant, which, however, blooms very rarely. The phenomenon was seen in 1470, when 36,000 Burgundians under Charles the Bold were defeated near the lake by the Swiss. The last time the waters were red was in 1914, just before the outbreak of the World war, a circumstance said to justify the old saying, "When blood is seen on Lake Morat there will be bloodshed in Europe."

APPEAL FOR FUNDS FOR NEW HALL AT ANTIOCH ANSWERED

In response to an appeal to Antioch College alumni to boost the fund for the erection of the Horace Mann Memorial Building, on the college campus, Yellow Springs, about $5,000 has been subscribed. It is announced by Philip C. Nash, dean.

Letters of appeal were sent out immediately following the destruction of the Horace Mann House by fire January 1, a catastrophe that greatly handicapped facilities at the Yellow Springs school.

The fund for a memorial building to the educator who was first president of the institution had already been inaugurated and was given impetus by the disaster. Letters were sent out the day following the fire, bearing an appeal for financial aid.

Besides the money received in response to these communications a nucleus had already been obtained. It is said that by allowing a full enrollment, the Horace Mann Memorial Building will reduce the operating deficit of the college about $15,000 a year.

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Stopped Her Suffering and Restored Her Health

Momence, Illinois.—"I surely can recommend your medicine to other women who have female weakness, as it has helped me very much in every way possible. I was working in a dining room in town, and sometimes I could not do my work; had pains in the lower part of my body and had to stay in bed. One of my neighbors told me what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for her, and it has surely done wonders for me. I hope all women who suffer will take my advice as the Vegetable Compound has done so much to bring back my vigor and strength."—Mrs. ALBERT E. DESCHAUD, Momence, Illinois.

Over 121,000 women have so far replied to our question, "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?" 98 per cent. of these replies answer "Yes." That is 98 out of every 100 women who take this medicine for the ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it. For sale by druggists everywhere.

LEARN TO IGNORE

I know many people who see too much. I am convinced that one of the fine arts is to ignore—a great deal.

If we are able to see or own hearts and recognize great bundles of faults and whole acres of mistakes that we have made time and time again, then just consider the fact that there are others to who these faults and mistakes must look very great indeed.

But just the minute I begin to see the beautiful traits in my friend, I notice his virtues being to take on new lustre.

I am all the time trying to learn this very great art of seeing the good in my friend and ignoring the bad. How quickly a particular pain or ailment seems to leave just the minute you start to ignore it.

Even the tiny baby knows this. He finds that if he will but cry and make a fuss he will be given attention. But let him be ignored when he stubs his toe or gets a little fall and he forgets the imagined hurt almost at once.

Learn to ignore the hurts of the world. This is a big order—but if you want to be strong, able, and convincing as a man or woman, it must be done.

It is a common thing to meet a person who believes that there is little good in this world—that if they only had the chance they could make a much better world than this one God has made and given us as a playground for a while. But I notice that the busy, thinking person has no such idea. It's a great world for him—for there is so much to do, and so little time in which to do it.

Learn to ignore. Life is a storehouse of beauty!

Footprints

BY SIDNEY THATCHER

"We have provided ourselves with the motor vehicle rolling stock at a cost of many millions of dollars and we must now provide the tracks upon which to operate it. When it is known that the wholesale value of automobiles and trucks manufactured last year amounted to over two and a half billion dollars and that the wholesale value of tires manufactured amounted to seven hundred and sixty million dollars and that we spent over a billion dollars for automobile parts and accessories, exclusive of tires, it does not sound unreasonable to propose that we should spend at least one hundred million dollars a year from the Federal Treasury and an equal amount by the states in order to complete our Federal Highway system within reasonable length of time."—Senator Thomas Sterling, South Dakota.

"When a firm sends its automobiles out on the streets and highways, business methods must be employed if accidents are to be avoided. An automobile accident, aside from being a loss to the individual and a sacrifice of human and material wealth, represents a business interruption. Progressive business men recognize this, but the effort to make it so is spasmodic. Co-ordinating efforts would be of immeasurable assistance, and it will be the duty of the National Motorists' Association to develop this."—Frank J. Baker, executive secretary.

QUART OF WATER CLEANS KIDNEYS

Take a Little Salts if Your Back Hurts, or Bladder Is Troubling You

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Eating too much rich food creates acids, which excite the kidneys. They become overworked from the strain and waste and poisons from the blood. Then we get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys, or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin drinking a quart of water each day, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, and in a few days your kidneys may act fine.

This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush and stimulate the kidneys; also to help neutralize the acids in the system, so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby often avoiding serious kidney complications. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

FORMER MAYOR OF TIFFIN DENIES ALL CHARGES ON STAND

Toledo, O., Feb. 2.—Former Mayor, Adolph Unger, who with 24 other Tiffin residents are on trial here for alleged operation of a "million dollar" liquor ring in violation of the Volstead act continued his own defense on the witness stand all morning.

Unger not only denied all the government charges on the witness stand but produced Tiffin court records to substantiate his statements. He emphatically denied that he told Eugene Grimes and Carl Bare, government witnesses that they could operate liquor places under his protection.

Unger also testified that he had caused the arrest of several members of the alleged liquor ring, and produced court documents to prove they were fined for violating the liquor laws of the state.

Styles BY LENORE

While the new fashions in sport clothes for Southern wear and early spring are not lacking in novelty, it is obvious that originality of style is secondary, and that materials are given the most importance.

Imported English flannels, kashas both plain and with contrasting over-plaids in shaggy wool effects, fine gasket weaves, two-tone striped English reps, are the materials thus far most often to be observed knitted materials are also used a lot. Particularly in reversible effects. In a frock or suit, the lighter or contrasting side is used for the trimming.

A very attractive and most wearable example of the new sport mode is the frock of tan and green striped flannel sketched above. There is, you see, the inevitable scarf. This, together with the cuffs and pockets, is made of knitted green wool, with fringe of the same color.

Fall's Ranch Manager Under Surveillance.

J. T. Johnson, Mgr.

It is reported in Washington that J. T. Johnson, manager of the Three Rivers, N. M., ranch of ex-Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall, is under constant surveillance. He had been summoned to Washington to be questioned about the statement of Archie Roosevelt, son of the late President, that he received checks for $65,000 from a representative of Harry P. Sinclair, oil magnate, and also about Fall's expenditures on his ranch after a long period of apparent penury.

EX-ACTRESS WEDS BRITISH GENERAL

General and Mrs. Sackville West

Major-General Sir Charles John Sackville-West, nephew of the late Lord Sackville, British Ambassador to the United States from 1881 to 1883, has been married in New York City to Mrs. Anne Meredith Bigelow, former actress. He is 53 and she is 28. His first wife died in London in 1920. The present Lady Sackville-West divorced Stephen Bigelow, of Boston, in Paris. Under the name of Anne Meredith she played in many Broadway successes. General Sackville-West has a long and meritorious career as a soldier of note. He was the British representative on the Supreme War Council.

DEMOCRATIC PAPER SAYS M'ADOO IS NOW ELIMINATED

Zanesville, O., Feb. 2.—The Zanesville Evening Signal, only Democratic paper in southeastern Ohio, says editorially today that "McAdoo won't do," basing its decision on yesterday's disclosures at Washington when Doherty stated Mr. McAdoo is his attorney, etc.

The Signal's editorial follows:

"If, as Mr. Doherty testified, before the Senate investigating committee yesterday, Mr. McAdoo has been paid $250,000, or any other sum, by the Doherty oil interests for legal services, rendered, he becomes automatically eliminated as a Democratic presidential possibility. True, Mr. McAdoo, according to Doherty's testimony, did not represent the Doherty firm until after he had retired from the Wilson cabinet and it was perfectly legal and eminently proper for him, as an attorney and private citizen to accept service with and render service to the oil magnate, but the disclosures and exposures of the past month or six weeks makes it absolutely impossible for him, or any other who wears either the Doherty or Sinclair brand, to be seriously considered as a presidential possibility.

"His employment by the Doherty interests does not reflect upon Mr. McAdoo either as a lawyer or as a citizen, and he was wholly within his rights in accepting service and big fees from the western oil magnate, by doing so he put himself out of the running for the presidency."

"At this critical time in the nation's affairs, oil and politics will not mix. It is already apparent that the one has already had too much to do with the other."

RECOVER DIAMOND SAID PROPERTY OF MURDERED YOUTH

Cincinnati, Feb. 2.—Elimination of all theories that love for a woman called Halton P. Siddall to kill John Mazzola, 28, son of a wealthy Panama merchant and a classmate of Siddall at the Ohio Medical college was made today, with recovery of a valuable diamond that had been taken from the person of Mazzola on the night of the murder and pawned by Siddall the following day.

The stone had been removed from the ring mounting and the mounting retained by Siddall, Detective Chief Kirgan and Detective McShane announced today. Siddall yesterday was held to the Hamilton County grand jury without bail on a first degree murder charge. He is the son of a banker of Equality, Ill. He has been contending that an insulting remark about a young lady made by Mazzola had started a quarrel which led to the murder.

WARSHIP DISPATCHED

Washington, Feb. 2.—In anticipation of a battle between Mexican federal troops and revolutionists at Vera Cruz, the United States cruiser Richmond has been ordered from Galveston, Tex. to that port, the State Department announced today.

DEFENDS OIL LEASES

Washington, Feb. 2.—Defending the leasing of the naval oil lands to H. P. Sinclair and E. L. Doherty and construction of storage tanks in Hawaii, Rear Admiral J. K. Robinson today told the house naval affairs committee that the navy had "kept its trust" throughout these transactions and that the only purpose was "to guard the property of the government."

Market News

New York, Feb. 2.—The stock market session today was a quiet orderly affair, prices maintaining a steady course with price changes generally fractional.

Steel common sold up 1-8 to 106 3-4 but Gulf States Steel gained one point to 86 3-4. The selling of the oils, apparent yesterday, was missing today. Instead there was a slow buying movement in these issues which rallied the group slightly. Caden gained a point to 37 5-8 but the others advanced only fractionally.

New York Central gained 1-2 to 105 3-8 and Southern Railway 1-2 to 47 1-2. New Haven rose 5-8 to 20.

BEAUTY CONTEST TO BE CONDUCTED BY WLW STATION

The first Radio Beauty Contest in history will be conducted by WLW, of The Crosley Radio Corporation, at 10:00 p. m. on St. Valentine's Night, February 14, 1924. The contestants are to be Miss Helen Hamilton, pupil of Miss Minnie Tracey; Miss Statira Childress, secretary of Hulbert Taft of the Cincinnati Times Star; Miss Hilda Brooks, advertising department of the Procter and Gamble Company, and Miss Mary Costello, Millinery Fashion Girl from the Joseph Lazarus Company.

In strange contrast to those beauty contests so familiar to all of us where the girls appear in person before the judges, the young ladies participating in this first Radio Beauty Contest will be judged by persons living hundreds and thousands of miles away! For they are to be described from the studio, where they will actually be, and then each is to say a few words to the vast radio audience. In this way every auditor will receive a very definite mental picture of just what the girls look like.

The exciting feature to the contest will be found in the fact that the voters are to voice their sentiments by telegraph. The telegraph company will have two or more lines direct into the WLW studio, and there receive the voters from all over the country. The telegrams are to be prepaid, and every telegram sent should bear the name and address of the sender. Each telegram will entitle its sender to a six months subscription to the Crosley Radio Weekly, so that every one participating will obtain value received for the cost of his vote. But besides this, and to make the contest ever so much more interesting, there are to be given away ONE HUNDRED PRIZES that are well worth the chance of winning.

The Dolly Warren Candy Company is offering Fifty five pound boxes of chocolates especially prepared for the occasion, to be distributed among those who vote on the winner. Michael Ibold, manufacturer of the Sonada Cigar, is contributing Fifty boxes of Sonadas to be distributed among the voters on the girl winning the second largest number of votes.

As for the girls, there will be a special theatre party at the Grand Opera House given by Thurston, the magician. Suitable presents also will be given to them. They are in the full spirit of the contest, and happy to participate in this, The First Radio Beauty Contest In The World.

FEWER BUT BETTER STATIONS FORECAST FOR THE FUTURE

A recapitulation of radio broadcasters on January 11, shows that there were 543 stations listed by the Department of Commerce, 15 less than on December 1. Only twelve new stations went on the air during the past month, whereas 34 passed out of existence in December. The loss is not regarded as serious to the popular industry, however, although many fans hated to see some of their old friends depart.

The remaining stations are reaching a higher place of efficiency and rendering better programs with necessarily less interference. Some of the matter broadcast by defunct stations will be handled, perhaps more effectively, by other stations. This is true in the cases of some of the churches and newspapers included in the list of deletions.

Of the existing stations, 290 are of Class A, 46 in Class B, and 2 in Class D, experimental, while only 196 of the 360-meter stations remain in Class C. In the past two months, 67 stations ceased broadcasting and 24 opened, showing that the decrease in numbers is gradual but steady. The prophecy that soon there will be fewer but better stations is being fulfilled.

BATTERY CAN BE FULLY RECHARGED IN SIX HOURS

An automobile battery may be fully recharged in four to six hours with the Hobart Bros., Constant Potential Recharging machine, now being installed at the plant of the Xenia Storage Battery Co. it is said. Use of the new machine will practically eliminate the rental of batteries, as it will be possible for motor owners to leave their cars in the morning and get them in the afternoon, according to John Ankeney, manager.

SAYS RECEIVING SET SHOULD BE AWAY FROM AERIAL

In radio reception some means of collecting or intercepting the radio waves must be provided. There are several ways of doing this, but the most commonly used method is with the aerial or antenna.

The antenna may be of one or more wires, bare or covered, suspended horizontally or vertically, indoor or outdoors. In general the longer the wire (within certain limits) and the higher it is placed the better the results will be.

It is not generally known by the majority of experimenters that the lower the set is placed with respect to the aerial, the better will be the results obtained. For example, with the aerial forty feet off the earth the best results are obtained with the apparatus on the street floor instead of in the attic. This is very strongly brought out when the experimenter tries it to his own satisfaction.

For broadcast reception a single copper wire about 100 feet long and as high as can conveniently be placed is usually as good or better than three or four wires fifty feet long.

An indoor aerial of the same length, height and distance above the instrument is not quite so good as one outdoors. This is especially true if the building has a metal roof or a large number of pipes or other grounded metal objects.

STANDINGS IN COUNTY COURT LOOP REMAIN UNCHANGED AFTER FRIDAY NIGHT'S CONTESTS

With the principal game scheduled held over from Friday to Saturday night, games Friday in the Greene County High School Basketball League failed to make radical changes in the loop standings.

The contest between Cedarville High, loop leaders and Yellow Springs High, a strong runner-up will be played Saturday night and fans believe it will be the week's warmest contest. A defeat of Cedarville would unseat that team from its first rank position.

Bellbrook entrenched its position in second place with a win Friday night and Beaver improved its standing at the expense of Spring Valley. Ross Twp., further increased its position by walloping Bowersville.

BEAVER VICTORIOUS

Beaver High broke a string of defeats over the heads of Spring Valley High at Beaver Friday night in a county court loop contest, winning 21 to 15.

Beaver led from the start but the game was closer in the opening half, Beaver leading at the half-time rest 11 to 8. Inability to hit the buckets from the free throw marks hurt Spring Valley as it made but three shots good out of 14 attempts.

EAST QUINTET BEATS LEGION FIVE 39 TO 24

East High school basketball team defeated the John Roan Post team of this city at East High gym Friday night by a 39 to 24 score.

The game was fast and furious throughout and kept the crowd on hand on its toes. The Legion bunch showed a lack of practice. East High did not have its regular team as three of the pastimers are on the sick list.

The high school outfit took the lead at the half and was on the long end of a 22 to 5 score.

The second half was by far the best and the Legion outscored their opponents by two points in this period. They also put up a stiff defense that caused Lewis's lads trouble once in awhile.

Buford was high man in scoring with seven fielders. Raymond and Baker counted five apiece.

Anderson and Harris were the mainstays for the losers. Harris turned in four from the field and one from the foul line. Anderson made one less from the field and one from the foul line.

A commercial traveler visiting a Glasgow warehouse made a bet with the manager that he would pick out all the married men among the employees.

Accordingly he stationed himself at the door as they returned from dinner, and mentioned all those whom he believed to be married. In almost every case he was right.

"How do you do it?" asked the manager.

"Oh, it's quite simple," said the traveler. "The married men wipe their feet on the mat; the single ones don't."

BRINGING UP FATHER

The Evil Shepherd

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

The two men occupied a table set against the wall. They were, in their way, an interesting contrast physically, neither of them good-looking, according to ordinary standards, but both with many pleasant characteristics. Andrew Wilmore, slight and dark, with sallow cheeks and brown eyes, looked very much what he was—a moderately successful journalist and writer of stories, a keen golfer, a bachelor who preferred a pipe to cigars, and lived at Richmond because he could not find a flat in London which he could afford, large enough for his somewhat expansive habits. Francis Ledsam was of a sturdier type, with features perhaps better known to the world owing to the constant activities of the cartoonist. His reputation during the last few years had carried him, notwithstanding his comparative youth—he was only thirty-five years of age—into the very front ranks of his profession, and his income was one of which men spoke with bated breath. He came from a family of landed proprietors, whose younger sons for generations had drifted always either to the bar or the law, and his name was well known in the purlieus of Lincoln's Inn before he himself had made it famous. He was a persistent refuser of invitations, and his acquaintances in the fashionable world were comparatively few. Yet every now and then he felt a mild interest in the people whom his companion assiduously pointed out to him.

Francis finally broke in on Andrew's chatter. "I know you're dying to talk about the Hilditch case, aren't you? Well, go ahead."

"I'm only interested in this last development," Wilmore confessed. "Of course, I read the newspaper reports. To tell you the truth, for a murder trial it seemed to me to rather lack color."

"It was a very simple and straightforward case," Francis said slowly. "Oliver Hilditch is the principal partner in an American financial company which has recently opened offices in the West End. He seems to have arrived in England about two years ago, to have taken a house in Hill street, and to have spent a great deal of money. A month or so ago, his partner from New York arrived in London, a man named Jordan of whom nothing was known. It has since transpired, however, that his journey to Europe was undertaken because he was unable to obtain certain figures relating to the business, from Hilditch. Oliver Hilditch met him at Southampton, traveled with him to London and found him a room at the Savoy. The next day the whole of the time seems to have been spent in the office, and it is certain, from the evidence of the clerk, that some disagreement took place between the two men. They dined together, however, apparently on good terms, at the Cafe Royal, and parted in Regent Street soon after ten. At twelve o'clock Jordan's body was picked up on the pavement in Hill street, within a few paces of Hilditch's door. He had been stabbed through the heart with some needle-like weapon, and was quite dead."

"Was there any vital cause of quarrel between them?" Wilmore inquired.

"Impossible to say," Francis replied. "The financial position of the company depends entirely upon the value of a large quantity of speculative bonds, but as there was only one clerk employed, it was impossible to get at any figures. Hilditch declared that Jordan had only a small share in the business, from which he had drawn a considerable income for years, and that he had not the slightest cause for complaint."

"What were Hilditch's movements that evening?" Wilmore asked.

"Not a soul seems to have seen him after he left Regent street," was the somewhat puzzled answer. "His own story was quite straightforward and has never been contradicted. He let himself into his house with a latch-key after his return from the Cafe Royal, drank a whisky and soda in the library, and went to bed before half-past eleven. The whole affair—"

Francis broke off abruptly in the middle of his sentence. He sat with his eyes fixed upon the door, silent and speechless.

"What in Heaven's name is the matter, old fellow?" Wilmore demanded, gazing at his companion in blank amazement.

The latter pulled himself together with an effort. The sight of the two new arrivals talking to Louis, the head waiter, on the threshold of the restaurant, seemed for the moment to have drawn every scrap of color from his cheeks. Nevertheless, his recovery was almost instantaneous.

"If you want to know any more," he said calmly, "you had better go and ask him to tell you the whole story himself. There he is."

"And the woman with him?" Wilmore exclaimed, under his breath.

"His wife!"

The appointment was made by Mayor Rell G. Allen of Washington and came as a surprise. Wolfe is a former member of the Washington Fire Department. He attained notoriety in Washington a few years ago when he accepted an offer of $50 for anyone who would agree to be chained to a tree in a Washington Cemetery all night. He spent the night in the cemetery and received the $50.

Hindu Gamblers' Day.

Gambling is permitted and countenanced for one day in the year in India, and that is the day of Devall—the Day of Light, which is dedicated to the Hindu god Ram, in celebration of his coronation, and of this day the devotees of that religion take great advantage. Huge sums are wagered on games of chance, and on frequent occasions the born gambler has lost one of his wives.

The native bazaars throughout India resemble fairland, for outside the house or shop of every true Hindu are placed numerous little lamps of primitive construction. They consist merely of small shallow bowls, about the size of a saltcellar, filled with oil in which a wick is floated. The number of lamps varies with the financial standing of the householder, the wealthier natives displaying them by the hundred. According to the tradition, he who displays the greatest number of lights will become exceedingly rich, for on this night Lakshmi, the goddess of wealth, is supposed to wander abroad, and enter wherever there are sufficient lights to catch her fancy.
